Welcome allied media makers to the 20th annual Allied Media Conference!

Twenty years is a long time. Twenty years is no time at all.

Look at this from one angle: it’s a swarm of full-grown butterflies. Look at it from another angle: it’s a single chrysalis, both fully alive and yet-to-be-born at once. Whether this is your first AMC or your 20th, you are right on time and the best is yet to come.

The AMC you see today is the result of hundreds who, over two decades, did work to change what this is, and were changed by it.

Over the past 20 years our media has changed from zines, to radio, mesh networks, hashtags, algorithms, poetry, podcasts, fashion, and magic.

The solidarities and alliances nurtured here have multiplied: from DIY media makers to radical women of color bloggers, Detroit-Johannesburg youth media exchanges, networks of formerly incarcerated people and media justice activists, movement oral historians, radical lawyers, places of post-disaster resilience, and so much more.

And the way we come together has changed, incorporating practices like the Kids Track, and Healing Justice Practice Space that make it possible for more people to participate with their full selves. We’ve built four-day experiments that grew into year-round infrastructure in Detroit, like the MagicNet mesh network.
and Community Safety Team. This year, the seeds planted in past years’ food-as-communication workshops and community dinners are blossoming into a full-blown AMC restaurant – the Dream Café – which will be serving local, delicious, liberatory food all weekend long, at the Cass Café (see page 127).

We’ve also come together around evolving sets of ideas: “Be the media,” “Sharing our tools, refusing the master’s,” “From truth to power because being right is not enough,” “Our evolution beyond survival,” “We are ready now,” “We begin by listening” “We presume our power,” “Get ready, stay ready.”

And we have planted these ideas like seeds in places both familiar and strange: in books, networks, campaigns, city governments, foundations, and congressional halls. They circulate, change, and return to the AMC in new forms.

The AMC is the story of how one thing leads to another. It is a story in which no one is an object and everyone is the author of the reality we write together. If we can cast one spell over the next 20 years of this beautiful, living thing, let it always stay in a process of becoming, held by a multitude of loving hands.

Jenny Lee
Executive Director
Allied Media Projects
Network Principles

We are making an honest attempt to solve the most significant problems of our day.

We are building a network of people and organizations that are developing long-term solutions based on the immediate confrontation of our most pressing problems.

Wherever there is a problem, there are already people acting on the problem in some fashion. Understanding those actions is the starting point for developing effective strategies to resolve the problem, so we focus on the solutions, not the problems.

We emphasize our own power and legitimacy.

We presume our power, not our powerlessness.

We spend more time building than attacking.

We focus on strategies rather than issues.

The strongest solutions happen through the process, not in a moment at the end of the process.

The most effective strategies for us are the ones that work in situations of scarce resources and intersecting systems of oppression because those solutions tend to be the most holistic and sustainable.

Place is important. For the AMC, Detroit is important as a source of innovative, collaborative, low-resource solutions. Detroit gives the conference a sense of place, just as each of the conference participants bring their own sense of place with them to the conference.

We encourage people to engage with their whole selves, not just with one part of their identity.

We begin by listening.

AMC Pro-tips

Whether this is your first AMC or your 20th, here are some tips to help you make the most of it:

1. Plan your schedule. There are more than 300 sessions at the AMC. That’s a lot of sessions! It’s best to plan ahead by reading through the sessions in your program book and bookmarking sessions you want to attend in the AMC2018 Sched mobile app, or at amc2018.sched.com.

2. Be open to new things. The AMC is a great space to try your hand at a new skill, or learn about a topic that is unfamiliar to you.

3. Ask for what you need. The people at the info desks located inside each main conference building are there to help you get the things you need to participate fully in the conference such as childcare, translation, wheelchair-accessible transportation, etc. You can also ask anyone you see wearing a teal “AMC Crew” t-shirt!

4. Use your badge. The back of your badge contains information you may need over the weekend such as phone numbers for shuttles, safety team contact information, and more. It also ensures your free entry to AMC @ Night events (page 110).

5. Eat at the AMC Dream Café. Support this delicious experiment in running a restaurant based on the principles of our movements—cooperation, sustainability, creativity, autonomy, and interdependence! [CASS CAFÉ, 4620 CASS AVE]

6. Take care of yourself. You do not have to attend everything, do everything or be everywhere through the weekend. Please ensure you maintain your health, energy and well-being throughout the weekend. For support, visit the Healing Justice Space [STUDENT CENTER ROOM 010] and/or the Relaxation Room [MCGREGOR L/M].

7. Give us your feedback. Fill out the post-AMC survey posted on our website on the Monday after the conference. Was there something missing at AMC this year? Start thinking about what sessions you will propose next year.

8. Have fun!

A Note About Privacy

Participants wearing purple lanyards do not wish to be photographed or included in video. It is always a good idea to ask permission before taking or publishing someone’s photo, regardless of their lanyard color.
Delegations

Delegations are groups who collectively fundraise to get to the conference, attend sessions together during the conference, and reflect on the conference as a group after it’s over. AMC2018 Delegations are listed below.

BaltiMedia for Digital Equity
Baltimore-based cultural workers, media makers, social designers, and digital equity advocates hoping to continue developing cultural interventions/strategies to create the conditions in which all residents have the information technology capacity needed for full civic and cultural participation.

Brave Bridges
Twelve feminist organizers of color working across movements in NYC and operating with expansive ideas of what it means to be both feminist and an organizer, while leaving space for both terms to be questioned.

The National Conference for Womxn in Cannabis
A group of organizers trying to build one of the leading inclusive spaces in cannabis to support, celebrate, and educate people with multiple intersectionalities in their identity on their roles in cannabis.

Asheville Community Media Collaborative
An Asheville delegation seeking ideas and inspiration to deepen our impact by using media and events to work towards collective liberation.

Network of Artists
We are a pool of talented entertainment artists who have come together to inspire any and all talented artists within the entertainment industry to collectively support one another.

ChiResists
A group of Latinx womxn water protectors, artists, educators, healers, and community workers focused on gentrification, who live in Chicago.

Black Lives of Unitarian Universalism (BLUU)
A group of Black Unitarian Universalists and UU-adjacent community members working to expand the power and capacity of Black UUs, provide support, info and resources for Black UUs and grow justice-making and liberation through Unitarian Universalism.
Regular Degular Bronx Baddies x Detroit!
A collective of dope, uptown NYC-born and raised social justice facilitators, educators, healers, and artists dedicated to creating safe community healing spaces for Black and Brown folks in the Bronx and northern Manhattan.

Indy10 BlackLivesMatter Core
Core organizers of Indy10, the BLM chapter of Indianapolis. We hope to network, share, listen, learn/unlearn, and build relationships.

Healing Justice Media Organizers
A group of media and healing justice practitioners passionate about democratizing access to politicized healing supports via media organizing.

We are All Connected
An Urban / Rural project at Educational Video Center where youth from NYC work with youth from Tennessee to create a film and website about common issues in their communities.

Native Roots Network
A hub for Native community members in the far Northern California Valley helping their community to maximize and multiply efforts and impacts through youth leadership development, cultural exchanges, traditional and contemporary Native arts, and community wellness.

The Frogtownians
Programmers from WFNU-LP Frogtown Community Radio, based out of the Frogtown neighborhood in Saint Paul, MN, one of the most diverse and vibrant communities in the Twin Cities. They work to challenge unfairly negative perceptions of the neighborhood.

Ethnocine Collective
A feminist filmmaking collective founded by women of color and queer-identified scholars-artists-activists whose work mounts a challenge to the universalization of perspectives of straight, able-bodied, upper class, white, cis-gender men.

DOPE Collective
DOPE Collective is rooted in creating space for people of color and LGBTQIA individuals in the arts. We combine music and visual art events with sexual health outreach efforts to ensure that our community is linked to the resources they need.
Puerto Rico Healing Justice Delegation

Post-Maria relief workers exploring the idea of critical allyship and building a stronger sense of support for those doing organizing work that prioritizes healing and community care.

Queer The Land

A collaborative project grounded in the self-determination of queer and trans people of color (QTPOC) and the vision of collectively owning our land and labor.

The California Cross-Pollinators

A group of activists and artists in California mobilizing around the Global Climate Action Summit as a focal point to uplift narratives of intersectional justice and international solidarity.

Brownsville Community Justice Center

A group of people, including young people from Brooklyn’s Brownsville Community Justice Center (BCJC), working on youth-led, project-focused technology education, and building a free community wireless network.

Creators for Corazon, Crayons, and Comunidad

A group of Chicago-based artists, activists, organizers (writers, musicians, photographers, videographers) who believe art should not only be accessible, but connected to social and systemic change.

SPNN Youth Action Committee

A youth leadership group at SPNN, in Saint Paul, MN. We take action on social justice issues, create media projects, and teach others about how to use media to make change in their communities.

Past, Present, Futurism: Resilient Infrastructure

Thursday June 14th
7:00pm - 8:30pm
[ COMMUNITY ARTS AUDITORIUM ]

Disaster is in the past, the present, and the future, all at once. But so too is the work of our communities to create resilient infrastructure rooted in beloved community. This infrastructure is both social and physical. It spans water, food security, communications, and energy. It heals the damage of disasters past and present, while preparing us for the future. This opening plenary of AMC2018 will offer evidence of the resilient infrastructure that can emerge from disaster. It will highlight the ongoing exchange of ideas and resources between Detroit and two other disaster-impacted places: Puerto Rico and New York City. Together we will explore how the relationships we form here, at the AMC, can become the resilient infrastructure that we need to shape the future.

MODERATOR: Jenny Lee is the Executive Director of Allied Media Projects. She has been leading and supporting efforts to create community-controlled, equitable infrastructure in Detroit, in the areas of media production, Internet, and funding since 2009.

Monica Lewis-Patrick, deeply disturbed by the water crisis in her home state of Michigan, set out to provide daily essentials to those in need. She has helped low-income families and the elderly, from Detroit to Flint, gain access to clean water – something many of us take for granted. Through her work with We the People of Detroit, the organization she co-founded, Lewis-Patrick has set up emergency water stations, opened hotlines, delivered water, provided education, and conducted community research to raise awareness. Her grassroots approach coupled with a steadfast commitment to justice has inspired people of all backgrounds to come together and build communities they’re proud of.
Maya Wiley is a nationally renowned expert on racial justice and equity who currently serves as the Senior Vice President for Social Justice and co-director of the Digital Equity Lab at the New School in New York City. Prior to that, Maya served as Counsel to the Mayor of the City of New York from 2014-2016, where she led efforts to expand affordable broadband access and advance human rights and gender equity. She has also been an advisor to the City of Detroit in the development of a digital equity strategy.

Diana Nucera is the director of the Detroit Community Technology Project and co-founder of the Detroit Digital Justice Coalition. Her work for the past 12 years has focused on developing popular education materials that empower communities to use media and technology to investigate, illuminate, and develop visionary solutions to challenges. Since 2016 she has co-led the Equitable Internet Initiative, an effort to redistribute gigabit Internet connectivity from Downtown Detroit to marginalized neighborhoods, while developing model neighborhood communications infrastructure that is sustainable, resilient, and community-controlled.

Tara Rodríguez Besosa is the product of a colony that has been extracted, abused and made completely dependent on external resources. Born in Santurce, Puerto Rico, they are an architect building a world where agro-ecological concepts and queer practices are used to create resilience through food sovereignty. Tara is the founder of El Departamento de la Comida, a project born in 2010 as a multi-farm CSA, then a storefront, then a local-sustainable sourced experimental kitchen, restaurant and workshop space in Puerto Rico, now in the stages of moving into a farm. They are also the co-founder/co-director of El Fondo de Resiliencia de Puerto Rico, born out of the aftermath of hurricanes Irma and María.
Stories Become Movements, Become Stories: Ending Sexual and Gender-based Violence

Friday June 15
9:00am - 10:30am
[ COMMUNITY ARTS AUDITORIUM ]

#MeToo has shown the power of stories to take down high profile perpetrators of sexual violence. It has forced a large-scale public reckoning with the plague of patriarchy and toxic masculinity. And still, the work to end sexual and gender-based violence requires so much more. We need stories that reveal the connection between state violence and interpersonal violence and how these are intertwined with systemic racism. We need media-based organizing that centers the leadership of sex workers, incarcerated people, survivors of child sexual violence and others who are too often disregarded as victims or disposable. We need art that heals and transforms culture at the roots. This plenary will demonstrate that we have what we need and explore what it will take to wield our collective powers for a future free from domination.

MODERATOR: Emi Kane has a background as a community organizer, educator, media-maker, and editor. She has been involved with the AMC for the past 12 years, and collaborates on curriculum and trainings for activists about surveillance in the context of social movement histories. A former long-time member of the national steering committee for INCITE!, she helped coordinate the collective’s media working group. She is now a proud member of the Allied Media Projects board.
Amita Swadhin is a Just Beginnings Collaborative Fellow and the founder and director of Mirror Memoirs, a storytelling and organizing project centering the narratives, healing, and leadership of LGBTQI people of color who were raped or sexually assaulted as children. They are an educator, storyteller, activist, and consultant dedicated to fighting interpersonal and institutional violence against young people. Amita’s commitments and approach to this work stem from their experiences as a genderqueer, femme queer woman of color, daughter of immigrants from India, and years of abuse by their parents, including eight years of rape by their father.

Tatyana Fazlalizadeh is the creator of Stop Telling Women to Smile, an international street art series that tackles gender based street harassment. The public art series can be found on walls across the globe, amassing international attention for tackling violence against women in public spaces. She is currently the inaugural Public Artist in Residence for the New York City Commission on Human Rights. Tatyana is the Art Consultant and Artist on the Netflix series, She’s Gotta Have It. She is a 2015 Forbes 30 Under 30 recipient. She lives and works in Brooklyn, NY. More at www.tlynnfaz.com

Emi Koyama is a multi-issue social justice activist and writer synthesizing feminist, Asian, survivor, dyke, queer, sex worker, intersex, genderqueer, and crip politics, as these factors, while not a complete descriptor of who she is, all impacted her life. She is currently the Coordinatrix of the Coalition for Rights & Safety for People in the Sex Trade, a network of community groups promoting self-determination, safety, well-being, and human rights of sex workers and people in the sex trade.

The Free Siwatu Coalition is comprised of individuals and organizations in Detroit working to free Siwatu Salama-Ra, support her family, abolish mandatory minimum sentencing, and fight for the health and dignity of all Michigan residents impacted by violence, unjust persecution and incarceration, especially pregnant women. Siwatu is a mother and Detroit community leader wrongfully imprisoned for defending herself, her two year old daughter, and her mother from a violent attack.
Join us for the AMC2018 Opening Ceremony!

Friday, June 15
5:45pm - 7:15pm
[ DETROIT FILM THEATER ]
5200 WOODWARD AVE.

The Detroit Film Theater is located inside the Detroit Institute of Arts. Enter through the John R entrance. There will be shuttles from all hotels and from the Wayne State campus to the theater.

Join us as we celebrate 20 years of the Allied Media Conference’s work of sharing and building media strategies for a more just, creative and collaborative world. The AMC’s Opening Ceremony will explore our roots, create space to dream our future and highlight the brilliant organizing work of Tarana Burke, founder of the #MeToo movement in conversation with Mariame Kaba, founder and director of Project NIA.

With performances by Detroit’s RV Mendoza, The Aadizookaan, and other guests, this year’s Opening Ceremony will fuel our hearts and minds for another twenty years of media-based organizing that impacts generations.
Shaping Data, Shaping Power

Saturday, June 16
9:00am - 10:30am
[ COMMUNITY ARTS AUDITORIUM ]

The Cambridge Analytica scandal and subsequent Facebook hearings made clear to the world what targeted communities have known for a long time: our data bodies are vulnerable and can not only be attacked but can be weaponized against us. The threat we face is more than reckless tech CEOs or nefarious political actors; it is the uncritical advancement of “smart city” technologies, of predictive policing, and of artificial intelligence that reproduces the bias of its makers and perpetuates violent narratives and policies. We can move “beyond paranoia to power” as the Our Data Bodies project has declared. We can learn from the long legacy of resistance by communities of color to the extraction and exploitation of our data. We can demystify data and engage the public in rigorous dialogue about who owns data, who governs it, and who is impacted by it. We can harness the data and brilliance of our own communities to build the liberatory tools we need.

MODERATOR: Sasha Costanza-Chock (pronouns: they/them or she/her) is Associate Professor of Civic Media at MIT, Faculty Associate at the Berkman-Klein Center for Internet & Society at Harvard University, and creator of the MIT Codesign Studio codesign.mit.edu. Their work focuses on transformative media organizing and design justice. They are a board member of Allied Media Projects and an active participant in the Design Justice Network.

Ruha Benjamin is Associate Professor of African American Studies at Princeton University, where she studies the social dimensions of science, medicine, and technology. She is the author of People’s Science (Stanford) and Race After Technology (Polity, forthcoming) and editor of Captivating Technology (Duke, 2019). She writes, teaches, and speaks widely about the relationship between power and innovation, race and citizenship, health and justice. For more, www.ruhabenjamin.com
Mona Chalabi is a journalist who really loves numbers. She is the Data Editor at Guardian US but she also draws and presents numbers on film. She has written and presented TV shows for the BBC, National Geographic, Channel 4, and VICE and is one half of the team that created the Emmy-nominated video series Vagina Dispatches. She is a data illustrator, whose sketches were commended by the Royal Statistical Society and Information is Beautiful in 2016.

Tawana Petty is the Data Justice Community Researcher for the Detroit Community Technology Project and a team member of the Our Data Bodies Project, where she works to advance a national conversation on the safety, privacy, and data protection needs of marginalized communities. She is a mother, anti-racist social justice organizer, author, and poet, born and raised in Detroit, Michigan.

Dr. Kortney Ryan Ziegler is the creator of Appolition, an app that converts spare change into bail money to free Black people, and founder of Trans*H4CK—the only tech event of its kind that spotlights trans* created tech and trans* led startups. Dr. Ziegler is also an Oakland based award winning artist, writer, and the first person to hold the Ph.D. of African American Studies from Northwestern University. He was recently named one of the Top 40 Under 40 LGBT activists by The Advocate Magazine and #29 of the most influential African Americans of 2013 by TheRoot100.
Performing New Worlds

Sunday June 17
3:00pm - 4:30pm
[ COMMUNITY ARTS AUDITORIUM ]

Performance is a site of power. It is where we contest the roles written for us by others and claim new ones. This plenary will showcase a multitude of ways that our communities create and transform power through performance—from public spectacle to news comedy, web TV, and more. It will explore how these various arts can conjure new worlds that interrogate and undermine systems of violence and domination, while at the same time proliferating joy and engaging more people in the critical conversations that shape our world.

MODERATOR: Una Aya Osato aka exHOTic other was born and raised in NYC, where she works as a performer, writer, and educator. Una has been writing, performing, and producing her award-winning original work for over fourteen years, performing nationally and internationally for tens of thousands of people in theaters, festivals, universities, conferences, community organizations, classrooms, and prisons. She is also a co-founder of brASS: Brown RadicalAss Burlesque, which has a monthly cabaret show “Compost Bin!” at Starr Bar in Brooklyn. brASS burlesque was recently featured in the New York Times: “Redefining Burlesque.” For more info: www.UnaOsato.com or find her on the socials @ThisIsUna.

Xandra Ibarra is an Oakland-based performance artist from the US/Mexico border who sometimes works under the alias of La Chica Boom. Ibarra uses hyperbolized modes of racialization and sexualization to test the boundaries between her own body and coloniality, compulsory whiteness, and Mexicanidad. Her practice integrates performance, sex acts, and burlesque with video, photography, and objects. Throughout her multiple works, she teeters between abjection and joy and problematizes the borders between proper and improper racial, gender, and queer subject.
Francesca Fiorentini is a journalist, comedian and activist. She is host and producer of the show Newsbroke on AJ+, the digital outlet of Al Jazeera Media Network. She is also a field correspondent with Explorer on the National Geographic Channel. As a stand up comic Francesca has performed at SF Sketchfest, the Comedy Comedy Festival in Los Angeles, and regularly appears in clubs and seedy bars in the Bay Area. She has worked in alternative media since 2004 as an editor with War Resisters League and with Left Turn Magazine.

Ahya Simone is a multitalented black trans woman based in Detroit, Michigan. She is the director of the soon-to-be released web series Femme Queen Chronicles. A classically trained harpist, composer, model, and activist, Ahya scored dream hampton and T. Miller’s “Treasure: From Tragedy to Trans Justice Mapping – A Detroit Story,” and has collaborated with worldwide known artists like Tunde Olaniran, Juliana Huxtable, and Kelela. She is the co-founding mother of Trans Sistas of Colors Project, an organization that uplift the lives of trans women of color in Detroit.

Ricardo Gamboa is an award-winning artist, activist, and academic working in their native Chicago and New York City, creating radically politicized work. Their current projects include the underground live and live-streamed news show The Hoodoisie, the community-based theater piece about Chicago’s Mexican diaspora, Meet Juan(ito) Doe and BRUJOS, the genre-bending, ground-breaking, queer-of-color web series about four gay Latino doctoral students who are also witches.
Closing Ceremony

Sunday, June 17
4:15pm - 5:00pm
[ COMMUNITY ARTS AUDITORIUM ]

We made it! Join the AMC as we celebrate our weekend of journeys, stories, connections and media-making magic. Featuring the golden voices of Detroit’s Video7 and hosted by adrienne maree brown, we will remix best-wishes for another 20 years of the conference and cast spells towards our collective liberation and ongoing work. See you next year!
Design Justice Track

Making design more just

Coordinators: Ebony Dumas, Victoria Barnett, Victor, Wes Taylor, and Danielle Aubert.

Design justice is a long term vision of liberatory design practice that centers and uplifts communities facing injustice. To move this work forward, the Design Justice Network organizes people from a variety of design backgrounds including graphic, architecture, planning, visual art, and people who are impacted by design, to create work and processes according to a set of shared principles. We will come together to build, reflect on, and share more just and collaborative ways of practicing design – ways that will support communities who are often harmed by or excluded from design processes. We will explore the traditional barriers between the different actors in the design process, and deconstruct the barriers by sharing and increasing access to skills, resources, and connections/support. Participants, both designers and people who are affected by design, will learn how to mobilize the design justice principles in their own work.
#MoreThanCode: Findings from the Tech 4 Social Justice Field Scan

PRESENTED BY Helyx Chase Scearce Horwitz, Sasha Costanza-Chock, T4SJ Project Partners

LUNCH MEETUP Can tech be a tool for liberation? Food and findings from "#MoreThanCode: Practitioners reimagine the landscape of tech for justice and equity," a field scan by the Tech 4 Social Justice Project.

Adventures in Co-Design!

PRESENTED BY Una Lee

HANDS-ON SESSION Co-design engages people in design of spaces and tools connected to their daily lives. We'll share a case study and co-design tools participants can bring back to their communities.

Choose Your Adventure: DIY Future Architecture Comic

PRESENTED BY Aaron Jones

HANDS-ON SESSION Why must the visualization of the future be an exclusive process? We will empower individuals to craft futures based on their values and create illustrated stories on space and place.

Community-Based Approaches for UX and Design Research

PRESENTED BY Amelia Abreu

HANDS-ON SESSION How do we build equity in designing technologies? We'll explore approaches to design research with the aim of stronger community relationships and reciprocity.

De-mechanize Design: This is Not a Poster

PRESENTED BY Katie Diamond, Liz Morgan

HANDS-ON SESSION Use Theatre of the Oppressed games to reimagine your design process in a radical way! Address root causes of systemic injustice with movement and reflection, then create a marketing campaign.

Design Against Design

PRESENTED BY Kevin Yuen Kit Lo, Lolo Sirois, Marie Noelle Hebert

STRATEGY SESSION Challenge the empty rhetoric of "design thinking," "social innovation," and "social impact design" through discussion of activist design practices rooted within struggles for social justice.

Design Justice Network Planning Session

PRESENTED BY Victor Moore, Una Lee, Sasha Costanza-Chock, Victoria Barnett; Ebony Dumas, Danielle Aubert

STRATEGY SESSION We will report back on network activities since we last met at AMC 2017, establish working groups, and set priorities for year ahead. New members are welcome to join!
Designing Possibilities for the Wellbeing of Black Women
PRESENTED BY Denise Shante Brown, N'Deye Diakhate

STRATEGY SESSION How might we position Black women as leaders in the design process to reimagine collective wellbeing, creatively and holistically? Explore new possibilities to address rising health concerns.

Imaginacion Post-___: Designing Justice After Disaster
PRESENTED BY Sofia Unanue, Cynthia Burgos Lopez, Alexandra Llegus Santiago

HANDS-ON SESSION Faced with our island's utter devastation, we dared to imagine a Puerto Rico recovery designed by Puerto Ricans. Learn about our journey and build your own path to justice after disaster.

Digital Futures of Consent Track

Exploring consent beyond our physical bodies

Coordinators: Diana Nucera, Janice Gates, Houman Saberi, and Alice Aguilar.

Consent is voluntary, imaginative, active, enthusiastic, creative, wanted, informed, mutual, and honest. What is consent beyond our physical bodies? Companies, governments, non-profits and more are increasingly relying on algorithms and data to shape our embodied and digital futures. What does it mean when harassment, violence, and surveillance extend beyond our physical lives and into our digital identities and relationships, or vice-versa? In the Digital Futures of Consent track, we will highlight examples of algorithmic accountability, accessible digital privacy and security practices and re-imagine tech infrastructure to both demystify and think critically about a digital future based in consent. Participants will leave with educational materials, tech development processes, a sense of digital self-worth, an empowered data body, and organizing practices that will lead us towards a culture of consent.

FERMENT Track

Feeding Emergent Resistance Movements, Envisioning Nourishing Traditions

Food is a medium through which we share knowledge and connect across time and space

Coordinators: Kate McCabe, Munira Lokhandwala, Kimberly Chou, Max Sussman, Shane Bernardo, Ora Wise, and Tara Rodriguez Besosa.

Many communities are cultivating new frameworks and tools to reclaim and share traditional foodways as an essential strategy for decolonizing and sustaining our cultures, bodies, lands and water. This track will explore how cooking and eating can be collaborative processes: between humans and nature, between generations, between farm workers and cooks. Food is directly connected to and impacted by the global capitalist systems and is essential to developing visionary alternatives. We intend to amplify the powerful ways in which people all over the world are using food in creative and collective ways to remake and Transform our food system while healing one another and our natural world. We will create our own food media, learn from each other how to make food that not only supports and sustains us as individuals but as movements, make Transparent how food systems work, develop understanding of how colonial powers destroy/exploit food systems as well as the role of cuisine and food production in resistance and self-determination.

Healing Justice Track

Reimagining wholeness in a co-created future

Coordinators: Sara Green, Marcia Lee, and Fen Jeffries.

The AMC Healing Justice Track and Practice Space are separate but collaborating entities of Detroit and National folk with a shared vision. We acknowledge and uphold that AMC is happening on Anishinaabe land in a predominantly Black city. Our Track and Practice Space center Indigenous, People of Color, queer, Trans/ gnc and disabled voices and experiences, and affirm that this work is rooted in the lineage of those communities*. We see Healing Justice as the practice of movement towards abundance at the intersection of intergenerational trauma, current structures of oppression, and a generative and co-created future. We hold that joy and pleasure create possibility to be in right relationship with ourselves, each other, our land, and our spirits. We strive to demystify medicine and healing, and to make them accessible to everyone. We believe that each person is an expert of their own experience, body and needs, and that ultimately it is necessary to address the roots of trauma and injustice for individual and collective Transformation.

*We are in ongoing process about the choices of language we have used here, and various potential impacts of that. Please feel free to be in contact with feelings, thoughts, questions, and feedback.

Indigenous Rising: Media as Resistance Track

Honoring the Transformative potential of Indigenous storytelling

Coordinators: Jenni Monet and Jade Begay.

Indigenous storytelling is on the rise. From across Indian Country and the Indigenous world, there is an intentional deconstruction and rejection taking place of colonial and tokenized systems long-used to define ancestral legacies of First Peoples. In the most modern way, artists, writers, podcasters, filmmakers, and others are resisting this pattern of erasure with bottom-up narratives that are as much about resiliency as they are an embrace of deep generational traumas left unhealed. That this emergence is happening in the face of great calamity—politically, environmentally, spiritually, and physically—reinforces the value of the “original instructions,” or traditional knowledge systems, that have foundationally framed Indigenous Peoples as ultimate survivors. Panels and sessions in this media track, then, will explore the types of tools, resources, and meaningful backdrops that are being utilized to feed the Indigenous Rising: Media as Resistance movement.

Learning Liberation Track

Creating empowered, humanizing classrooms

Coordinators: Nate Mullen, Thomas Nikundiwe, Ammerah Saidi, and Matt Homrich-Knieling.

Consent is voluntary, imaginative, active, enthusiastic, creative, wanted, informed, mutual, and honest. What is consent beyond our physical bodies? Companies, governments, non-profits and more are increasingly relying on algorithms and data, to shape our embodied and digital futures. What does it mean when harassment, violence, and surveillance extend beyond our physical lives and into our digital identities and relationships, or vice-versa? In the Digital Futures of Consent track, we seek to highlight examples of algorithmic accountability, accessible digital privacy and security practices and re-imagine tech infrastructure to both demystify and think critically about a digital future based in consent. Participants will leave with educational materials, tech development processes, a sense of digital self-worth, an empowered data body, and organizing practices that will lead us towards a culture of consent.

Poetry & Storytelling for Freedom Track

Creative resistance in our communities

Coordinators: Mïï Gun, Sheezy Bo Beezy, Sherina Rodriguez Sharpe, Megan Stockton, and Gabrielle Knox.

We exist in a time of conflicting narratives; let us imagine a different time, a new world. Poetry & Storytelling for Freedom Track is concerned with understanding the ways individuals and communities are affected daily by narratives of dominance and how we can unearth counter-narratives by speaking for ourselves—through stories and performance. Within our cities and our newsfeeds, we see the effects of erasure on history, culture, and representation in society. Participants will walk away with strategies for “finding your voice”, tools for building a fiction that can help repair reality, honoring the history of poetic insurgency, discovering methods of access and resistance, and generative techniques to support, execute and honor your stories. In this track, performance, poetry, and storytelling converge in our abilities to communicate the urgencies of our current reality and all possible futures—to imagine and build the new world that community organizing is searching for.

The Research Justice Track, is back and will focus on sharing skills and tools for utilizing grassroots-led research and data in order to reveal untold stories, challenge dominant narratives, and expose social injustice to make the case for change. Research justice honors the expertise of communities most impacted by injustice and supports their organizing and movement building, pursuing the production of knowledge through a popular education framework. Our definition of “data” is broad and includes our experiences, traditions, stories, and community knowledge, as well as the many ways we communicate our data, such as maps, reports and studies. We will examine success stories of radical research as a tool for change and liberation, while continuing to grow a national research justice network.

Coordinators: Diana Benitez, Shweta Moorthy, and Sally Marquez.

Network Gatherings
Bodies in Resistance Network Gathering

A Transfeminist technology disruption

Our fight for Transfeminist spaces and platforms are a continuum of our struggles in the physical and digital territories that we inhabit as Black, Brown, Indigenous peoples and communities from the diaspora. We are bodies in resistance. In this network gathering, we’ll explore strategies to disrupt capitalism and technologies shaped by privatisation, profit, patriarchy, and heteronormativity. What would a Transfeminist internet, cooperative economy, and infrastructures built from the pleasure and joy of liberated bodies and collective care look like? Come plot with us and practice hackfeminist self-defense to short circuit oppressive systems.

It will be a day of shared play, experimentation, and wisdom. This bilingual Spanish and English space is for womyn and gender nonconforming POC and their allies.
Cultivating Independent Mission-Driven MediaMakers Network Gathering

Catalyzing fresh perspectives into public media and beyond

Coordinators: Tran Vu, An Uong, and Ava Fields.

The Association of Independents in Radio (AIR) Network Gathering will connect, build dialogue, and incite independent changemakers to utilize media as a tool to create stories for and by the people. For a decade, AIR’s New Voice Scholars and Localore producers have harnessed their voices and passion to bring fresh perspectives into public media and beyond. Invited producers and partners from the AIR network will provide models and actionable techniques for cultivating mission-driven media, community storytelling, and forwarding diversity in media through showcases, workshops, and networking.
Detroit Housing Justice Network Gathering

Building critical connections for housing justice in Detroit

Coordinators: Amina Kirk, Tristan Taylor, Tewonia Edwards, Akua Hill, Julie Pedtke, and Jordan Millwood.

At a critical moment in Detroit’s evolution as the nation’s largest majority Black city, the Detroit Housing Justice Network Gathering seeks to build cohesion and capacity among organizers and activists. Against the backdrop of one of the most segregated metropolitan regions in the nation, the network gathering will offer a space for critical dialogue and analysis, along with the voices of those most impacted. Discussions will center around the history of race and class struggles in Detroit’s housing landscape and how those patterns are repeating themselves in today’s hyper and privatized development activities.

Detroit activists and organizations have been fighting to preserve and protect homes for current low-income and longtime Detroiters by addressing the decreasing supply of public housing and housing subsidies by increasing the supply of decent, healthy, accessible and affordable homes and apartment units for Detroiters with incomes less than $25,000 annually. This Network Gathering will encourage the sharing of strategies that inform resistance to the displacement of long-time and low-income residents, housing alternatives that challenge traditional notions of land control and home ownership and model policies that intervene in the displacement trends that currently accompany economic development and revitalization plans encouraged by the city. Participants will also draw connections between the mission of various organizations and grassroots-led movement work that highlight the intersectionality of housing justice work in Detroit.
Facilitation for Liberation Network Gathering

Building collective capacity for intensive facilitation

Coordinators: Autumn Brown, Maryse Mitchell-Brody, and Manju Rajendran.

This moment of political upheaval and climate crisis requires that we build collective capacity to hold space for creating new futures. The Facilitation for Liberation Network Gathering will build upon years of facilitation skill-building at the AMC, exploring how facilitation rooted in anti-oppression principles and practice can build pathways to liberation. During the gathering, we will explore the skills we facilitators need to co-create in order to support movement building in this political landscape. We will practice facilitation for collective self-governance and conflict resolution, and examine strategies for integrating healing and trauma-informed practices into facilitation. Participants will bring resources and insights to deepen each other’s work, will create shared commitments to facilitation for liberation, and will leave the gathering connected to facilitators from across North America working towards collective Transformation. Attendance at this Network Gathering is by invitation only.
Fat Lovin’
Media Futures
Network Gathering

Deconstructing fat stigma at its intersections

Coordinators: Linda Dianne, Amanda Levitt, KC Slack, Jose Sagastume, and Kytara Epps.

How do we unlearn mainstream ideas of what a body should look like and (re)learn to celebrate the diversity, resilience, wisdom and beauty of all bodies? This track will explore these questions and create spaces to challenge the ongoing ways mainstream media shames and harms abundant bodies, to name fatphobia in our organizing and activism, and to create media and practical strategies for resistance, healing and community building. We will broaden the conversation around fat activism by centering this track on the voices of Indigenous, Black, people of color, dis/abled, super-sized, Trans, and queer fat folks. Abundant/thick/fat bodies are the target of so much hate, policing and negativity, even in our organizing communities. Through workshops, panels, and skillshares we will Transform mainstream ideas around abundant bodies and create resilient communities, media, and art centered around abundant bodies!
FemTechNet
Network Gathering

Digital feminisms in action

Coordinators: Naomi Silver, George Hoagland, Lisa Nakamura, Veronica Paredes, Anne Cong-Huyen, and Stephanie Rosen.

FemTechNet is a D.I.O. (Do It Ourselves) network founded in 2012 by feminist organizers, educators, artists, activists, and scholars working on technology, justice, Transformation, digital media praxis and theory. This is our second year at AMC and we are excited to have found our spiritual and intellectual home. We are an open multigenerational network, and we welcome new members who want to work together, smash the patriarchy, create new intersectional feminist theory, prototype projects, and Transform education, action, and theory for the digital age. FemTechNet brings together several interest groups, including a critical race and media group, a digital archiving expert group, a feminist pedagogy group, and is open to your ideas for new ones! Come and get to know us in person in Detroit, and add yourself to our mailing list for our online meeting schedule and more.
Telling Immigrant Food Stories Network Gathering

Highlighting whole immigrant stories through food

Coordinators: Erin Gold, Adela Nieves, Martina Guzman, John Rudolph, Von Diaz, and Jocelyn Gonzales.

The Telling Immigrant Food Stories Network Gathering will bring new journalistic tools and networking opportunities to journalists and culinary professionals, allowing them to tell important food stories from the perspective of new Americans. Food journalism is an especially effective means to highlight important issues within immigrant communities and to portray immigrants as the fully-dimensional people that they are to audiences that may have lost contact with their own immigrant roots or are hostile to the needs of today’s immigrants. Designed to be immersive and intensive, the network gathering will focus on developing story ideas for presentation to a panel of editors from national and local media outlets. We will make special efforts to encourage participation by people who work and live in Detroit. Based on similar workshops Feet in 2 Worlds has organized in New York City, the curriculum focuses on ethical issues in food journalism and reporting on immigrants and immigrant communities, and a multimedia approach to telling stories about critical issues in food in immigrant communities such as child nutrition and education, labor and employment, anti-hunger efforts, sustainability, climate change, and federal, state and/or local food policies, as well as stories about immigrant culture and culinary traditions.
Interlocking Roots for Food Justice Network Gathering

A QTBIPOC* Network Gathering

Coordinators: Cris Izaguirre, Audrey Kuo, kumari giles, Glenda Ullauri, Ceci Pineda, and Ashleigh Eubanks.

What would food justice look like if we achieved collective liberation for Queer and Trans Black and Indigenous People of Color (QTBIPOC)? In this gathering, we will share collective strategies that center food and earthwork as tools for decolonization to combat issues of isolation, trauma, and accountability within our movement spaces. Our network gathering will be a chill space for fellow QTBIPOC to connect, affirm queer and Trans identities through our own and our plant ancestor stories, talk about queer ecology, strategize, and eat together! This network gathering will also serve as a space for us to collect stories from QTBIPOC farmers for an upcoming podcast. Our intention is to honor our multifaceted strategies for liberation as sacred rituals that will Transcend volatile political times and nourish our collective spirit. This is an open network gathering to all Queer and Trans Black and Indigenous People of Color.

Gathering

Media strategies for digital rights, access, and representation

Coordinators: Angella Bellota, Carlos Pareja, and Shilo McCabe.

The Media Action Grassroots Network, also known as MAG-Net, is a movement-building network of 100 organizations from across the country representing a diverse set of social justice, media, and arts organizations. To achieve our vision of media justice, we organize and mobilize with people that work with and on behalf of marginalized communities. We believe that the right to communicate belongs to everyone and together we leverage our collective power for digital rights, media & technology access, and fair media representation.

During our MAG-Net network gathering, we will convene member organizations to develop new organizing skills, network strategies, and deepen cross-sector relationships. Together, we will connect current social justice issues with media justice strategies in order to win digital rights, access, and representation for our communities. This network gathering is invite-only.
Mobilizing Our Resources Network Gathering

Radical resource-building, sharing, and visioning

Coordinators: Crystal Middlestadt, Leah E. Olm, Wazi Maret, Tanya Mote, Mario Lugay, and Allen Kwabena Frimpong.

We all have our own issues around money, and it’s time to drop our baggage. We need to be comfortable with money in order to Transform how we use it.

What happens when we resolve our money issues? What does a Transformative, sexy, abundant resource mobilizing culture look like, feel like, and sound like? How could changing our stories about money collectively change our movements? And most importantly: if we burnt it all down and started over again, what would we build? We will share storytelling, case studies, and interactive discussions. We will generate ideas, swap fundraising practices, and strengthen our evolving network of resource mobilizers. Participants will walk away with new relationships, concrete strategies to Transform our resource mobilization practices, and ongoing mantras to Transform ourselves. Together, we will lay the groundwork for a strong network of radical resource mobilizers dedicated to building our collective power and strengthening our movements.
Movement Lawyering Network Gathering

Radical relationship-building for radical lawyers

Coordinators: Amanda Alexander, Purvi Shah, Krystina Francois, and Marbre Stahly-Butts.

How can we infuse our legal work with more creativity, joy, and imagination as we support communities organizing for social change? The Movement Lawyering Network Gathering will bring radical lawyers and legal workers together for a day of skill-building to help them incorporate media, art, and technology into their practice. We will explore ways that lawyers can use tools—such as short films, design, graphic novels, and podcasts—to tell compelling client stories, democratize the law, and build deeper relationships with organizers and culture workers. Participants will walk away with new media skills and a network of legal workers practicing at the intersection of law and culture. This Network Gathering is hosted by the Detroit Justice Center, Law for Black Lives, and Movement Law Lab—organizations committed to creating powerful, innovative legal networks to support social justice movements across the country.
NQTTCN @ AMC
Network Gathering

Mental health as healing justice

Coordinators: Erica Woodland, Tavia Benjamin, and Bianca Blakesley.

What is the role of queer and Trans mental health practitioners of color in our social justice movements? How do we create communities and movements rooted in healing justice? The National Queer & Trans Therapists of Color Network (NQTTCN) is coming together during the Allied Media Conference to explore these questions, and will use this network gathering to delve deeper into this work. We will bring together healers and movement leaders to build relationship and trust, map healing justice resources and needs for queer and Trans people of color across the country, and strategize for a larger QTPOC healing justice convening in 2020. Participants will walk away with more alignment around our healing justice values and practice, deeper connections to practitioners across the country, and strategies to promote healing justice in the field of mental health and the broader movement for social justice.
SPEAK: A Decade of Women of Color Media Makers Network Gathering

Celebration and strategy renewal

Coordinators: Alexis Pauline Gumbs, Adela Nieves, LaGuana Gray, Rosa Cabrera, and Meagan Ortiz.

What about that network of dreamers that met at the AMC in 2007 and never let each other go? This gathering is a reunion for SPEAK, a network of women of color who have created an album together, gone to battle for each other online, raised each other’s children in their hearts, lit candles, sent money and kept each other alive. In this Network Gathering, we will celebrate, we will strategize about how to tell the story of our love in relationship to women of color collaborators before us and those to come. We will leave with a plan to share SPEAK as a model and to share our lessons learned. Participants will leave the gathering renewed and more empowered to support each other’s current adventures and to collaborate forever.
SWANA Creators Network Gathering

Building community, skills, and strategy as SWANA diaspora

Coordinators: Ananas Khogali-Mustafa, Noura Ballout, Kamelya Youssef, Leyya Mona Tawil, and Leila Abdelrazaq.

How do artists and media makers of the Southwest Asian & North African (SWANA) diaspora use art and media as a tool to work towards more inclusive, intersectional, and just diasporic communities?

This network gathering will bring together SWANA artists and media makers to share skills, strategies, and experiences using art and media as tools for building more just communities within the diaspora, and as bridges to building and healing across communities. Through sharing space and skills, we hope to build a stronger sense of community of SWANA artists and creators using media as tools for movement making, organizing, and influencing and how media-making moves our communities forward. Attendees will walk away with new strategies, approaches, and connections to other SWANA artists and media-makers, as well as have helped to craft a national collaborative network of SWANA artists and media-makers long-term. This network gathering will be hosted by HAFLA Detroit.
Media Consortium Re-Launch Network Gathering

Mobilizing independent media in our movements

Coordinators: Jo Ellen Green Kaiser, Manolia Charlotin, and Anna Simonton.

This closed network gathering will relaunch the Media Consortium (www.themediaconsortium.org) as a network of independent and community journalism outlets that are eager to partner with culturally specific communities, with social justice movements, and with each other to build a better world. Along with staff at current Media Consortium outlets, we particularly welcome and invite staff from outlets serving geographically and culturally specific communities; journalists who see social justice movements as valuable partners, and allies in the media policy, philanthropic, educational, and social justice work.
AMC @ Night

Every year the AMC showcases performing artists working at the intersection of art and social change. AMC @ Night is a four-day musical showcase featuring an exciting range of both national acts and representatives of Detroit’s legendary music scene. Every night of the conference, Thursday through Sunday, we are bringing you concerts, karaoke, an open mic, bowling, and dance parties!

Download the AMC2018 Sched Mobile App, visit amc2018.sched.com, or stop by an info desk for the most up-to-date details: dates, time, locations, and descriptions.

Info Desk

New to the AMC? Have questions? Need directions? The info desk has the answer. Desks are staffed by knowledgeable volunteers and AMC organizers. They are open throughout the conference while sessions are running.

Look for big “Info Desk” signs and volunteers waiting to answer questions in the Student Center, McGregor Conference Center, and State Hall.

Accessibility

At the Allied Media Conference “accessibility” is not a concept – it is an investment and an action. Accessibility means the opportunity for every participant to be able to engage with the spaces, places and events of the weekend.

Here are some of the ways we build and support an accessible AMC2018:

- Campus shuttle between buildings (see page 132)
- Wheelchair accessible van providing rides to campus buildings and most off-campus locations. Request a ride at an info desk or call (313) 989-9224 for a ride.
- Scent-free spaces encouraged throughout the conference
- Armless folding chairs in each building for participant use
- Privacy (individuals with purple lanyards choose to not be photographed or recorded)
- Complimentary registration for attendants (people who are supporting disabled participants through the conference)
Translation/Traducción

Need translation from English-to-Spanish, Spanish-to-English? Call or text our Translation Coordinator Christina Guzman: 313-268-2325.

¿Necesitas traducción en Español? Puedes llamar o mandar un texto a Christina Guzman: 313-268-2325.

ASL services are also available throughout the weekend. Please call or text Christina to coordinate: 313-268-2325.

Childcare

Childcare is provided for all children who attend the AMC. A parent or adult in care of a child can enroll any child for the duration of the conference. Childcare provides fun, creative and educational activities as well as healthy snacks twice daily. All parents or guardians bringing children must complete an entrance form for their child. Childcare is closed during lunchtime; parents are responsible for providing lunch for their children.

Available:

- Thursday: 9:30am - 5:30pm
- Friday & Saturday: 8:30am - 5:45pm
- Sunday: 9:30am - 4:45pm

Breastfeeding/Changing Room

In addition to childcare, we are offering a quiet space where we invite parents who are breastfeeding, feeding, or changing their small ones to have a room away from the activities of the conference. [STUDENT CENTER: ROOM 279]
Deep Relaxation Room

Awesome as it is, the AMC can be overwhelming. You can go to the Deep Relaxation Room to chill out, take a nap, make some tea and recharge. Help maintain a safe and calming space for everyone to enjoy.

During lunch on Friday, Saturday, and Sunday, join us in the Deep Relaxation Room for some group healing activities and exercises. [ McGregor: Room L/M ]

AMC Work Room

We know that while you are here, your work doesn’t stop. Drop into this work room to have low-level conversations and keep up with your inbox through the weekend. Please bring your own laptop or device. [ Student Center: Room 358 ]

Recreation and Exercise

The Mort Harris Recreation and Fitness Center located in the heart of the Wayne State University campus has created a membership program especially for 2018 Allied Media participants. The special conference attendee rate is only $10.00/day. Daily bike rentals are also available. Simply bring your photo ID and conference badge to the front desk of the fitness center to sign up.
Places to Eat

There are many food options in the immediate area for you to explore during lunch and dinner. Ask a local for a recommendation, browse Yelp! or Google for options in Midtown Detroit, or swing by Room 312 in State Hall to grab a bagged lunch between 12:30pm and 2:00pm throughout the weekend.

Help us raise awareness of the AMC by telling restaurant staff that you are coming from the conference. Please tip generously!

Dream Café & Community Food Hub

New this year, the AMC is presenting the Dream Café & Community Food Hub inside the Cass Café at 4620 Cass Ave.

The AMC Dream Café and Community Food Hub is an all-day café and then some – a convivial gathering place serving the AMC community but open to all, infused with art, music, stories and images of the communities involved in the food being served. It is more than a restaurant, while also serving as an experiment in running a restaurant based on the principles of our movements – cooperation, sustainability, network building, creativity, autonomy, and interdependence.

Getting Around

AMC Location

The primary location of AMC2018 is the Wayne State University Student Center at 5221 Gullen Mall on the campus of Wayne State University.

Please view the campus map on page 129 to view the locations of each building we are using for the AMC.

Wheelchair Accessible Van

We have a wheelchair accessible van that can provide rides to other campus buildings and most off-campus locations. Request a ride at any info desk or call (313) 989-9224 for a ride.

Rides Between Buildings

If you need a ride from one place to another on the Wayne State campus, the “Unicorn Flight” golf cart pick up stations are outside the McGregor Conference Center and the Student Center.

Bike Rental

A MoGo public bike sharing station is located at Anthony Wayne Drive and Kirby Street, near the shuttle stop. A daily pass is available for $8 and provides an unlimited number of 30-minute trips for 24-hours. (For trips that extend beyond 30 minutes, users pay $4 for each additional 30-minute period.) Passes can be purchased at any of Detroit’s 43 MoGo stations.
Parking

Parking with no out-and-back privileges is $7.25/day in Structure 2. Credit card only. You must swipe the same credit card upon exit; however, a charge is applied on entry only. Structure 2 is located at 5150 Lodge Service Drive bordered by Kirby St. and Anthony Wayne Drive.

There is metered parking outside most conference locations, and parking lots at off-campus locations. Please ask the AMC Info Desk for details.

Tour Pick-up

Sign-up for tours is at the Info Desk in the Student Center. Tour bus pick-up is on Anthony Wayne Dr. and Kirby. Look for a tour bus sign and a volunteer. Please be at the shuttle entrance at least 15 minutes before your tour’s scheduled departure. Five minutes before departure any empty seats will be given away to folks on the waitlist. To register for tours go to an info desk.

Nighttime Event Shuttles

A continuous loop shuttle will run between the dorms, Dream Café, Hotel St. Regis and all nighttime events during the following hours:

Thursday: 6:30pm - 11:00pm
Friday: 7:30pm - 2:00am
Saturday: 7:30pm - 2:00am
Sunday: 6:00pm - 10:00pm

Call 313-989-9224 to request a pick up. The shuttle seats 10 people and is first-come, first-serve. Please use a rideshare service as your backup option.
To and From the Airport

App-based ride hailing services such as Lyft will take you to and from the airport. Here are some other options:

Skoot: (855) 937-5668 or www.rideskoot.com
Metro Cab: (734) 997-6500
Metro Cars: (800) 456-1701

Bus

Visit the Detroit Department of Transportation website for bus schedules and maps www.detroitmi.gov.

M-1 Rail / QLine

The M-1 Rail / QLine streetcar will operate between Downtown and New Center from:

Monday - Thursday: 6:00am – 12:00am
Friday: 6:00am – 2:00am
Saturday: 8:00am – 2:00am
Sunday: 8:00am – 11:00pm

The Ferry Stop is the closest stop to the AMC on the Wayne State University campus. The cost is $1.50 for the walk-up rate or $3.00 for the day rate.

An Experience You Won’t Forget
A History You’ll Always Remember
Playing to the Crowd
Musicians, Audiences, and the Intimate Work of Connection
Nancy Baym

Playing to the Crowd explores and explains how the rise of digital communication platforms has transformed artist-fan relationships into something closer to friendship or family. Through in-depth interviews with musicians such as Billy Bragg and Richie Hawtin, as well as members of the Cure, UB40, and Throwing Muses, Baym reveals how new media has facilitated these connections through the active, and often required, participation of the artists and their devoted, digital fan base.

Before the rise of social sharing and user-generated content, fans were mostly seen as an undifferentiated and unidentifiable mass, often mediated through record labels and the press. However, in today’s networked era, musicians and fans have built more active relationships through social media, fan sites, and artist sites, giving fans a new sense of intimacy and offering artists unparalleled information about their audiences. However, this comes at a price. For audiences, meeting their heroes can kill the mystique. For artists, maintaining active relationships with so many people can be both personally and financially draining, as well as extremely labor intensive.

Custodians of the Internet
Platforms, Content Moderation, and the Hidden Decisions that Shape Social Media
Tarleton Gillespie

Most users want their Twitter feed, Facebook page, and YouTube comments to be free of harassment and porn. Whether faced with “fake news” or livestreamed violence, “content moderators”—who censor or promote user-posted content—have never been more important. This is especially true when the tools that social media platforms use to curb trolling, ban hate speech, and censor pornography can also silence the speech you need to hear.

In this revealing and nuanced exploration, Gillespie provides an overview of current social media practices and explains the underlying rationales for how, when, and why these policies are enforced. In doing so, Gillespie highlights that content moderation receives too little public scrutiny even as it is shapes social norms and creates consequences for public discourse, cultural production, and the fabric of society. Based on interviews with content moderators, creators, and consumers, this accessible, timely book is a must-read for anyone who’s ever clicked “like” or “retweet.”
